Meeting overview

In September 2022, the International Labour Organization (ILO), Walk Free Foundation, and International Organization for Migration will release the new Global Estimates on Modern Slavery report. The estimates provide important insights and impetus to the work of the private sector on the eradication of forced labour. To present the latest figures, the ILO GBNFL and the National Business Association of Colombia (ANDI) are organizing an online briefing for member companies and business representative organizations in Latin America and the Caribbean. The ILO GBNFL will also present key actions necessary for identifying, preventing, and addressing the ILO’s 11 indicators of forced labour from its report on Eradicating forced labour: What works in practice.

Meeting objectives

- Present the latest Global Estimates on Modern Slavery
- Discuss the impact of the findings for private sector action
- Provide an overview of promising practices to address forced labour
